

Keep Mandel on City Council

Highland Park/ Steve Mandel has proven to be a tireless, dedicated and independent voice on the Highland Park City Council, and we need to keep him there.

Steve's love and concern for Highland Park have been evident in his efforts to preserve the character and beauty of Highland Park, while recognizing that change and growth are inevitable. He's always ready for an exchange of ideas and actively seeks input and involvement from members of the community. Steve will always listen fairly to all sides of an issue.

As a fiscal conservative, Steve has a track record of fighting hard for lower taxes. As an environmental activist, he has continually focused on protecting the natural beauty and character of our community. As one who loves Highland Park, Steve has worked diligently to support improvements that have impacted positively on the quality of life for those of us who live here.

Steve's independence, integrity and experience have given him an important voice on the City Council. Because our community will continue to face problems and concerns related to ongoing growth and development, we still need his voice and his balanced approach to solutions. That is why I am voting to re-elect Steve Mandel on April 5. I hope you will too.

Patricia Goodman

Mandel devoted to open space

Highland Park/ During his tenure on the Highland Park City Council, Steve Mandel has always been an advocate for intergovernmental cooperation, and has always worked hard to obtain and preserve open space in our community.

In my capacity as Park District of Highland Park commissioner, I have seen first-hand Steve's ability to work on many joint city/park district projects: Hidden Creek Aqua Park/Fredrickson Place, Highland Park Country Club and the Golf Learning Center, The 38 Acres at Highway 22 and Route 41, preservation of the lakefront and ravine system at the south end of Fort Sheridan, and the new Highland Park Recreation Center.

Steve wants to work to continue the quality of life that we all enjoy in Highland Park. Please join with me and vote for Steve Mandel, councilman, city of Highland Park April 5.

Lorenz Werhane Jr.
President Park District of Highland Park